The Auntie Karen Foundation presents the Fifth Annual Legends of...Concert Series.

The Auntie Karen Foundation, a global South Carolina based 501 c 3 organization will present the 5th Legends of Concert at the Koger Center in Columbia, SC. The foundation's mission is to empower, enlighten and educate through the arts. Each year, during Black History Month the foundation honors a musical legend that has made a lasting contribution to the history of American Music. Past legends include: Roberta Flack (2004), Dianne Reeves (2005) Al Jarreau (2006) and Patti Austin (2007). Join them on February 22, 2008 as they celebrate their fifth concert by welcoming two legends, Joe Sample & Randy Crawford.

RANDY CRAWFORD & JOE SAMPLE
Feeling Good

It is safe to say that Feeling Good, Randy Crawford and Joe Sample's new duet album, has been 30 years in the making. Indeed it was 30 years ago that Joe and Randy first met during the recording of her debut album, Everything Must Change, on which Joe played. Shortly thereafter, while writing songs for his band - The Crusaders - Joe invited Randy to appear as a guest on their record, and wrote "Street Life" especially for her. Of course the rest is history. "Street Life" became an international hit record for the Crusaders, and launched Randy on her own phenomenally successful career. They continued their collaboration thru the early 80's, Joe playing on Randy's own albums and writing numerous of her biggest hit songs, including "One Day I'll Fly Away," "When Your Life Was Low," and "Last Night At Danceland." When producer Tommy LiPuma (2-time Grammy® winner for "Album of The Year Award", and recipient of over 30 Grammy® nominations and awards) came on board as producer of Randy's own break through album, Secret Combination, the seed for Feeling Good had indeed taken root. Come see them perform songs from this project and more live at the Koger Center.

Proceeds from this event benefit The Auntie Karen Foundation.
